

BEVERLY PRESS

Volume 17 No. 34

Serving the West Hollywood, Hancock Park and Wilshire Communities

August 23, 2007

photo by Michael Yanow

Bryan Moeller (left), regional vice president for Wells Fargo and a Jewish Big Brothers Big Sisters (JBBBS) board member, presented a check to Margy Feldman, president and CEO of JBBBS, and Gabby Leon, director of Camp Max Strauss.

Bank Makes Donation To Camp Max Straus

Children at Camp Max Straus, which is operated by Jewish Big Brothers and Sister of Los Angeles (JBBBS), received a treat recently as they were joined by volunteers from Wells Fargo to assist in fun-filled activities.

Bryan Moeller, regional vice president for Wells Fargo and a Jewish Big Brothers Big Sisters board member, led a group of about 20 employees who spent the day with campers on activities that ranged from grooming the camp horses to preparing for the camp's adaptation of Harry Potter, "Order of the Arrowhead". Bryan also presented a donation of $35,000 to support Camp Max Straus, on behalf of Wells Fargo. In addition, selected Camp Max Straus alumni came to receive special college scholarships and address the campers. The Arnold

S. Nelson Scholarships were awarded to a selected group of young adults who have completed the Camp Max Straus backpacking and leadership development program in the high sierras, called the Witherbee program. JBBBS has provided scholarships to more than 40 children through its various programs this year, a total of more than $120,000 in financial assistance. Each year, JBBBS offers scholarships to motivated and deserving youth who have completed the Witherbee Program. Recipients are selected based on their needs, ability to succeed and commitment to community service.